

Make Your New Recruit Inductions More Effective

When inducting new employees the constant challenge is to ensure that this time adds value to the business, the information is relevant and is retained by the new recruit.

During the first few weeks a new recruit is expected to learn large amounts of new information, skills and standards which can be a challenge.

One solution to this challenge is to keep the induction information at the front of a new recruits mind with regular recaps, Winning Ways meets this need.
